Daniel J. Reidenberg, PSY.D.,FAPA.D., FAPA, DAPA
CRS, CMT

Dr. Dan Reidenberg is the Executive Director of SAVE (Suicide Awareness Voices of Education), a national non-profit agency working to prevent suicide and help suicide survivors and those suffering with brain illnesses. He is also the Managing Director of the National Council for Suicide Prevention and serves on the Steering Committee for the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline and the Steering Committee for the Suicide Prevention Resource Center. Dan graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1988 with a degree in Psychology and minor in Child Psychology. After completing training at the St. Peter Regional Treatment Center and the Minnesota Security Hospital, he received his Doctor of Clinical Psychology degree in 1994 from the Minnesota School of Professional Psychology.

Before coming to SAVE Dan was the Director of Family & Children’s Service in Minneapolis overseeing 10 mental health and community-based programs. Under his direction SAVE operates a national multi-media campaign, professional and community education and training programs, as well as develops resources and support for those in crisis and survivors. Dr. Reidenberg speaks nationally on suicide prevention issues, assisted with groundbreaking research on billboards and media related to suicide prevention and serves on various state suicide prevention task forces and committees.

As a volunteer Dan served eight years on the Board of Directors of the Minnesota Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse, lectured to over 6,500 individuals on child abuse, and received two Commendations from the Governor for organizing 24-hour Radiothons to End Child Abuse. In December, 2006 Dan was named one of the Ten Outstanding Young Minnesotans for his twenty years of volunteer service and work in the healthcare field and in January, 2007 he was awarded the B. Warren Hart Award for service to humanity.

Judge Thomas K. Kaulukukui, Jr., (ret.)

Thomas K. Kaulukukui, Jr. was born in Honolulu, Hawai’i in 1945. He is a 1963 graduate of the Kamehameha Schools. He earned a Bachelor of Science Degree in Education from Michigan State University in 1967.

In 1970, after his military service, he attended graduate school, studying exercise physiology. He returned to Hawai’i in 1971, and taught physical education and coached wrestling and football in the Hawai’i public schools. In 1974, he was accepted into the University of Hawaii School of Law, and graduated in the Law School’s second graduating class in 1977. He then served for one year as Law Clerk to Chief Judge Samuel P. King of the United States District Court for the District of Hawai’i. After his clerkship, he practiced law for several years, eventually becoming a partner in his own law firm.

In March, 1988, he became Governor John Waihee’s first appointee to judgeship. He presided over criminal trials, criminal motions, civil jury trials and civil motions. He has also served as the Arbitration Judge, and as the Land Court, Tax Appeal and Administrative Appeal Judge. He was a member of the Executive Committee of the Hawaii State Trial Judges Association. He has also served the Judiciary, the Bar, and the public as a chairperson and member of several committees. He also served as a member of the Disciplinary Board.

In March, 1993, he retired from the bench to become the Vice President, Community Affairs, for The Queen’s Health Systems. The Queen’s Health Systems is a family of sixteen health care companies, with a total of 4,000 employees in the State of Hawai’i. The best known of these companies are Queen’s Medical Center and Queen Emma Foundation. The main focus of his work was on issues involving Hawaiian health.

In March, 1998, he was appointed as a Trustee to the Queen Lili’uokalani Trust. Today, the Queen Lili’uokalani Children’s Centers continue the Queen’s legacy as it strives to help orphan and destitute children in the Hawaiian Islands, preference being given to Hawaiian children. He is currently the Chairman of the Board of Trustees.

He currently resides in Kailua, O’ahu with his wife, Joyce, has 3 children and 6 grandchildren. His varied non-professional personal interests include his family; Hawaiian culture and language; collecting vintage acoustic guitars; reading, writing, and oratory. He also volunteers his time to various non-profit organizations.
